Lipo MIC

Lipotropes are compounds that may aid in the breakdown of body fat by acting on lipid metabolism and synthesis pathways. When used in combination with lifestyle modifications such as exercise and diet, lipotropic compounds may promote fat and weight loss. The lipotropic agents in this injection are Methionine, Inositol, and Choline. While each may individually affect the mobilization of fats, the combination may provide synergistic benefits.

$25

Vitamin D3

Vitamin D is crucial to the building and maintenance of healthy bones and teeth. Calcium, the primary component of bone, is only properly absorbed by your body when Vitamin D is present. Vitamin D is created within the body when direct sunlight converts a chemical in your skin into an active form of the vitamin.

Coenzyme Q10

CoQ10 is a compound made by your body and stored in the mitochondria of your cells. One of its primary functions is to help generate energy in your cells. It's involved in making adenosine triphosphate (ATP), which is involved in energy transfer within cells. CoQ10's ability to reduce oxidative damage helps protect the heart, brain and lungs from damage. Studies also show benefits with fertility, migraines, exercise performance and lowering blood glucose.

$15

Hydroxocobalamin (B12)

Vitamin B12 helps your body use fat and carbohydrates for energy and make new protein. It is also important for normal blood cell, and nerve function. B12 deficiencies are very common and can lead to anemias.
